Head of Actuarial Reserving - Allianz Australia

Skills & experience

General insurance reserving leader with expertise in business partnering, financial insights, and modernisation across short and long tail lines. Yongjie can support you in emotional awareness, critical thinking, innovation and creativity, direction and purpose, and commercial acumen.

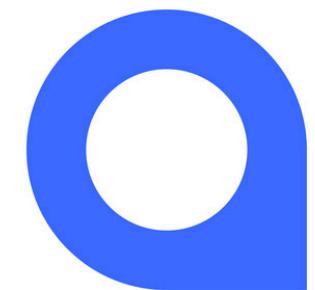

Yongjie Qi is a qualified actuary and strategic leader who serves as Head of Actuarial Reserving at Allianz Australia, reporting to the Chief Actuary. He leads a team of actuaries and analysts, ensuring core actuarial reserving responsibilities are fulfilled with the highest quality while providing input to monthly financial results, planning dialogue, reinsurance and capital strategies.

Yongjie's career spans diverse general insurance roles across multiple organisations and geographies. He spent over a decade at QBE Insurance AUSPAC in progressively senior roles, including Head of Actuarial for Property, Liability and Credit Lines, and an expatriate assignment as Head of Actuarial for New Zealand and Pacific, where he established a high-performing actuarial team. His approach combines technical excellence with strategic business partnering, expanding the actuarial circle of influence through financial insights, performance monitoring, and business planning support. He has been a key contributor to major transformation projects including reserving modernisation, monitoring enhancement, and IFRS17 implementation. He is a member of the General Insurance Practice Committee and leads the Natural Perils Working Group, and has previously contributed to the Institute's education program.

As a mentor, Yongjie is passionate about sharing his experience and learnings to help younger generation actuaries fast-track their careers. His diverse career path provides valuable perspective for actuaries navigating their own career development. Yongjie is a Fellow of the Institute of Actuaries of Australia and holds the Chartered Enterprise Risk Actuary designation.
